

I understand why C++ would be used to make games since it's pretty fast, but so many of the applications we make in lab could be done in python and functions in python just make more sense to me, what are some other reasons to use C++?